

Elections in the United States

Elections in the United States establish the relationship between government and the people. They serve as the communication device for letting the government know how its citizens feel, what they want, and who they want to lead and represent them. They are conducted at different levels to make the most direct form of democracy possible. The different states and the governments within each state coordinate their elections to maximize voter participation and ensure a steady transition of government. Below is a list of the major elections that occur in the United States.

 National

State

 County

City

 Primary Election

General Election 